Ecole cantonale d'art de Lausanne
University of Art and Design Lausanne

Project by the 1st year Master Product Design students in collaboration with SIGG and led by designer Michel Charlot.

Following recent trend surveys showing that more and more people bring food to their workplace, students from the Master in Product Design were asked to develop lunch boxes, food containers and accessories in relation to European, Asian and American cultures whilst considering SIGG's identity.

Take-it-away
 Design by ECAL/Seraina Lareida
 Assistant ECAL/Ana Varela
 Photography ECAL/Emile Barret

A silicone container and plastic lid designed to fit tightly in the original SIGG lunch box, making it microwave, oven and freezer friendly.

SIGG
 Swiss Made. Since 1908.

Eyes only
 Design by ECAL/Thibault Penven

A lunch box for children between 3 and 6 years old. The two eyes embossed in the bottom of the box let children imagine and create their own character with their food.

Mill and Shaker
 Design by ECAL/Olli Hirvonen

Sturdy spill-proof salt/pepper mill and shaker for the office and the outdoors.

Wrap
Design by ECAL/Luc Beaussart

A simple bag to carry a SIGG lunchbox and a bottle.

Nomad
Design by ECAL/Dominic Schlögel

A set of double-walled stainless steel and plastic containers that can be screwed together to transport one or many meals at a time.

Turn
Design by ECAL/Miloš Ristin

Turn is a leak-proof lunch box which shape is inspired by ceramic tableware. Its slim profile and reduced 13 inch diameter allows for an easy transport from home to the workplace.

Cool
Design by ECAL/Carolien Niebling

A lunch box specifically made for cold lunches. The lid has a cool-pack that keeps the food fresh for over 5 hours.
